The idea of the Glass Heap Challenge, as conceived of by Matt Durran, is to challenge the creativity of artists, designers and glass protagonists to find and demonstrate unique, creative and inspiring works which show ways to utilize stockpiled waste glass. This not only brings a greater level of awareness to the potential of upcycling waste glass but also provokes discussion on how to make better use of waste material in general.

The Glass Heap Challenge does not follow an established and elaborate plan, it is simple, inclusive and embraces the element of uncertainty. No one knows ahead of time what sort of raw materials will be on hand, often what type of space will be available, what kind of equipment or technical assistance will be on site, and indeed, as some of the teams are made up of people who have never met each other, who they will be working with. This uncertainty inspires the participants to meet the Challenge with a much greater level of energy and excitement than a more structured approach would give.

The resulting finished pieces create a legacy of art works, objects and products to inspire and add value to future markets.

The Glass Heap Challenge International Masterclasses is part of the program, How Glass Can Change the World 2014-2015

The International Masterclasses 2014 is the 4th in the series: 1994 Masterclass 'Joep Nicolas Foundation', Academy of Fine Art, Maastricht, NL, 1995 Masterclass Breekpunt Alden Biesen, Bilzen, B and 1996 Masterclasses Kleinlützel, CH
